Expert Tips for a Stronger Research Paper

Define a Narrow Question: A specific focus leads to faster assistance and better coherence.

Target High-Impact Databases: Prioritize sources from Scopus, Web of Science, and PubMed.

Prioritize Statistical Rigour: Always report effect sizes alongside p-values.

Protect IP: File patents before publishing to avoid forfeiting rights.

Verify Originality: Always request a Turnitin report—we provide one with every delivery.
